WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—President-elect Hoover is expected to communicate with Great Britain early in his administration to see if there is a possibility of resuming disarmament negotiations which were broken off at Geneva in 1927, the United Press is informed on reliable authority.

Sources in possession of this information have viewed the interview which Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador at Washington, gave the United Press as meaning that the president-elect will be favorably received in London and that there may be a new disarmament conference possibly before this year is over.

The matter is a delicate diplomatic question and authorities in touch with the situation generally decline to make public statements at this time.

For one thing, the recent senate debate over the American naval program now adopted, has directed international attention to the armament construction program of the United States and Britain.

An appropriation to begin work on the cruisers immediately is now pending in the senate. For another thing, President Coolidge whose strong Armistice Day address severely criticized the British attitude expressed at Geneva, is now about to retire along with his secretary of state.

The third and possibly the most important reason for silence in congressional circles is the fact that the American naval program, seeking to hold up the congressional appropriation.

Before the campaign was over Hoover gave the impression to some of his advisers he might seek to reopen the negotiations which it was obvious Mr. Coolidge could not reopen.

It is agreed the American building program will not be a block in the path of proposed steps, because even with the fifteen new cruisers and an aircraft carrier the American navy would yet fall far behind that of Britain.

MAN KILLS WIFE; CLAIMS ACCIDENT

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 16.—Police today were investigating the death of Mrs. Cressia Henry, 32, who was shot and killed here last night by her husband, George, who claims the shooting was accidental.

The shooting followed a party at the home of Milos Meisickum, 49, where the latter and Henry engaged in a fight. Henry, with a drawn knife, held Meisickum at bay while he took a gun from him.

The Henrys then departed and Mrs. Henry was shot upon their arrival home. Henry says the gun was accidentally discharged when he handed it to his wife.

DYNAMITE TRAIN IN MEXICO; MILITARY ESCORT IS KILLED

Renewed Disorders Occur; Death Toll Is 35

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 16.—Renewed disorders in Mexico were reported last night with deaths totalling more than thirty-five.

Incomplete dispatches from Guadalajara said a train was dynamited between Los Reyes and Yuracuan, state of Michoacan, and the engineer, fireman and entire military escort killed. No passengers were among the casualties.

Mexican military escorts generally number between twenty-five and forty soldiers but the dispatches failed to state how many were on the dynamited train.

Several engagements between federal troops and rebels previously had resulted in thirty-five men being killed.

Although the train was dynamited at noon yesterday, only the barest reports had been received early today.

The train was the third dynamited within a week. The presidential train bringing President Emilio Portes Gil to Mexico was dynamited last Sunday and the same day another train was dynamited.

Valente Quintana, the chief detective investigating the dynamiting of the presidential train, returned to the capital from Celaya and Guanajuato yesterday but declined to reveal what he had learned.

Seven nuns were deported to Havana through Vera Cruz last night. They were arrested at a home for the aged and were charged with conducting masses contrary to government orders.

Twenty priests reported for registration in compliance with the government's order that all priests must register or be considered rebels. The number brought the total to sixty-six.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Who will stop the next volley of leaden messengers of hate in Chicago's gangland war over the control of needed beer?

Swift reprisal for the massacre recently of six henchmen of "Big George" Moran, north side "alky" overlord, will follow as the night the day. Gangland knows it for a certainty and accepts the fact stolidly. The truce between "Scarface Al" Capone, leader of the South Side beer interests, and Moran is as if it had never been.

For the moment Chicago's streets are bare of beer trucks and their drivers, beer collectors and their "musclemen" body guards. Even the hoodlum hangers-on are in hiding.

"FASTING UNDER GUIDANCE OF GOD" IS CLAIM OF MAN WHO WOULD SAVE TOWN

NEW HAMPSHIRE, O., Feb. 16.—As Fred Conrad, 27, entered upon the thirty-fourth day of his "anti-devil" hunger strike today, a move to oust the Rev. Ray Dotson, pastor of New Hampshire Methodist Church, was underway.

Dotson is blamed for Conrad's "mar-yrdom."

Conrad—a 200-pound traction station agent—began his campaign against the devil after a revival meeting conducted by Dotson. He is quoted as saying he will not eat "until the devil has been cast out of every sinner in the village, including his father."

Dotson's congregation has become worried. Conrad is becoming a mere shadow of himself and the villagers insist that Dotson—"since he is responsible"—should persuade him to eat.

The Rev. Dotson refuses to discuss the "strike," and meantime, his congregation has dwindled alarmingly.

Conrad, himself, has been approached with a request to "cut out this foolishness," but the obese agent says he is "fasting under the guidance of God."

The sheriff's office and the county health commissioner have been called in but since the statutes contain no laws governing hunger-strikes, these officials are powerless.

Conrad is extremely weak but the health commissioner, Dr. R. C. Hunter, has told him there is no immediate danger.

Conrad's once robust 200 pounds are now 140 lbs., his muscles are flabby and his face is heavily lined. His only sustenance has been an occasional drink and chewing gum.

The strike has precipitated a division in the church membership. On the one side is Conrad's father, a Russell Point grocer, who refuses "to be saved."

"Fred came to my house with Dotson and told me I had to be saved," the elder Conrad said. "It was 2 a. m. before he left and he told me if I didn't follow him into the church I'd follow his casket in."

Conrad said he didn't take his son seriously until two weeks later when the younger Conrad's avoidances began slipping away.

Then young Conrad announced he not only was going to fast until his father was saved but until the entire village entered the church portals.

Homestead, a miner from the Hocking Valley district, came to Belmont County at the start of the strike two years ago.

Last summer he was arrested, with three others, on a charge of burning the household goods of a non-union worker at the Staley mine. The trial had been under way since Monday.

Yesterday the third day of the trial a messenger was ushered in to the court room.

"Homer, your baby died 10 minutes ago and your wife wants you," he told Hanzey.

Quietness closed over the court room. A sob from the stricken father. It would be two more days before the trial ended.

TWO KILLED, THIRD MAY DIE AS RESULT OF ROADHOUSE FIGHT

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Feb. 16.—Two persons—one of them a woman who was shot down when she leaped in front of her husband to protect him—are dead and a third was near death today following a gun battle in a roadhouse near here.

Mrs. Thomas Renfrow, wife of the proprietor of the inn, and Clifford Alford were killed and Robert Alford was so seriously wounded he may die.

Renfrow ejected Alford and his two brothers and "Crip" Jarvis from the roadhouse early yesterday.

A short time later the brothers and Jarvis returned. Clifford Alford brandished a gun.

Renfrow saw them approaching and armed himself. Clifford Alford raised his gun and as he fired Mrs. Renfrow leaped in front of her husband.

At this juncture Elmer Turner, the Renfrow's son-in-law, opened fire on the Alfords, killing Clifford Alford and wounding Robert Alford. No action has been taken against Turner.

The cause of the first quarrel was not learned.

MELVILLE E. STONE DIES; FOUNDER OF ASSOCIATED PRESS

Journalism Leader's Death Results In Tributes

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Melville E. Stone, a leader in American journalism, trusted friend of famous men, patriot and influential figure in world affairs, died last night.

Today expressions of regret and sympathy, together with acclaim for the man and his work came from those who knew him.

It was as one of the founders of the Associated Press, which he headed as general manager for twenty-eight years, that Stone was best known. He was a pioneer in the use of the telephone in journalism, reaching toward new high standards of fast and comprehensive reporting of world events.

Death followed an illness of four months and was caused by hardening of the arteries. Stone was in his eighty-first year. He is survived by his widow, the former Martha McFarland of Chicago; a daughter, Elizabeth Creighton Stone, born of whom were present at his death, and a brother, Professor Ormond Stone, formerly of the University of Virginia faculty.

"Journalism loses a courageous leader and a wise counselor, and the country a true patriot," said Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times and a director of the Associated Press, today.

Ochs, who was closely associated with Stone through the latter stages of his career, described him as one who could have attained vast wealth because of his business genius but who chose instead "service to the fellow man, the pursuit of a noble idea, the establishment of a fine principle."

Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Star and president of the Associated Press, reached at Palm Beach, Fla., said:

"At this moment I can only say that I think I have lost a very dear friend and one of the two or three great men I have ever known."

APPROVE FESS BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—A strengthened form of the Fess railroad consolidation bill was approved and ordered favorably reported to the senate today by the interstate commerce commission.

The committee adopted two amendments by Senator Sackett, Republican, Ky., which will have the effect of modifying the purpose of the Fess bill.

The contracting company with which Newton was associated where for the first time within the memory of the living, people could walk from Enkisen across the Sudee to the island of Urk, a distance of fifteen miles.

Many inhabitants fled from Alacran, Germany, or the Wurme, because ice floes had swollen the river to flood stage.

CLEW FROM DAYTON MAY CLEAR MYSTERY IN KIDNAPING CASE

Dayton Attorneys Assist Probe In Hillsboro.

HILLSBORO, O., Feb. 16.—The mystery surrounding the kidnaping of 4-year-old Nancy Keys from the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Keys, here last Tuesday, was believed near solution today.

The first actual clew as to the identity of the child's abductors, came in a letter from a Dayton, O., boarding house keeper to Sheriff G. S. Miller.

The letter said "Mrs. Edith Bowen" who with a man, presumably her husband, kidnaped Nancy, formerly lived at the boarding house with her son, Gordon, 4.

The letter linked Mrs. Bowen's name with that of Orville Overholser of Vandavia with whom Nancy lived after her mother died in Dayton in 1927, under mysterious circumstances.

Overholser fought for custody of the child but she was awarded to her grandparents who later adopted her.

The letter said Mrs. Bowen often went to Overholser's home. A picture of little Gordon was enclosed and Mrs. Keys identified it as that of the boy with Mrs. Bowen when the latter came to Hillsboro.

The name "Bowen" is believed fictitious.

Ward Callopy, an attorney and J. F. Conseneau, both of Dayton, have come to Hillsboro to work on the case. Conseneau was an old friend of Nancy's mother, Mrs. Ellen Hammond.

Conseneau said he believed Mrs. Hammond was murdered. He said that he and Mrs. Hammond worked together in Overholser's collection agency at Dayton.

Both Conseneau and Callopy, gave valuable information concerning Overholser, who disappeared a few days before Nancy was abducted. The sheriff is searching for him.

Fear was expressed today that Nancy may have been harmed. More than $2000 has been offered for the capture of the abductors, who sped away with Nancy after taking her and an aunt, Lillian, 17, to Cincinnati "for a ride."

TOLEDO BUSINESS MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 16.—Horace E. Newton, secretary-treasurer of the Newton-Baxter Company here, shot and killed himself early today.

The shooting occurred at the Newton home where Mrs. Newton and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Gest of Mechanicsburg were in another part of the house.

The contracting company with which Newton was associated where for the first time within the memory of the living, people could walk from Enkisen across the Sudee to the island of Urk, a distance of fifteen miles.

Many inhabitants fled from Alacran, Germany, or the Wurme, because ice floes had swollen the river to flood stage.

Vienna citizens were notified they could bathe today. A no-bathing ban was imposed last Saturday when a water shortage threatened.

HELD IN SLAYING

James Wynne, former resident of Dayton, O., has been arrested in New York City in connection with the killing of James Landusky, 17-year-old elevator operator of a Greenwich Village night club. Wynne was an aviator during the World War.

Wynne was arrested by police officers of the New York City police department. He was taken to the police station and held in custody.

COAL RIOTS FOLLOW FUEL SHORTAGES IN COLD BOUND EUROPE

Intense Suffering Continues With No Relief In Sight

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Suffering grew more intense today as the European cold wave, almost unprecedented in history, tightened its grasp on the continent and the British Isles.

Coal riots were reported in Breslau, Silesia, and food shortages were admitted officially in Berlin with predictions of rationing.

The death toll mounted to approximately 200 today. Eight aged people died in Sandwich, England, from the cold.

A bride was frozen to death near Petrikov, Poland, while she was riding with her husband in a farm wagon. They were going to Petrikov to celebrate their wedding.

Six ships which German battle ships had freed from ice barriers in the Langerlands belt were caught behind another ice barrier and their destruction was feared.

Meteorologists gave no encouragement to the cold-weathered Europeans. On the contrary, in Germany they predicted the disconcerting weather would continue.

Meanwhile, Greenland, Iceland, and northern Norway complained of the heat. Eskimos said snows were melting and they could not use their hunting sledges.

Temperatures were so low in Switzerland yesterday that all ice sport meets were abandoned for the present.

Drinking water cost fifteen pennies (about two cents) a bucket in the Holslein cities of Stade and Guelphstadt, where municipal water cars were distributing it attempting to meet the shortage.

The Luthansha Company was forced to abandon attempts to send relief to icebound ships in the Baltic.

The Wurme River in Germany, was clogged with ice and overflowing, threatening to submerge the Karlsruhe in the northern part of the city which supplies all North Bavaria with power.

Emergency food measures have been introduced in the Netherlands where for the first time within the memory of the living, people could walk from Enkisen across the Sudee to the island of Urk, a distance of fifteen miles.

PUBLIC OPINION IS SUPPORTING DRIVE ON CHICAGO CRIME

State's Attorney Is
Blaming Police; Clew
Is Found

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Keyed to its highest pitch of indignation, public opinion clamored today for a purging of Chicago, a general house-cleaning of the gangster element responsible for the murder of seven men on Valentine's Day.

The bullet-ridden bodies of the seven—Dr. R. H. Schwimmer, optometrist, whose desire for gangster association brought about his death, Frank and Peter Gusenberg, James Clark, Adam Heyer, John May and Albert Weinshank—lay in morgues today, unwitting stimuli for the greatest drive on crime in Chicago history.

The drive was started with a bitter denunciation of the police by State's Attorney John A. Swanson. Calling his police captains before him, Swanson delivered a stinging indictment of their records, warned that "it is easier to send a policeman to jail than it is to send a gangster there," and laid the entire blame for the shooting at the door of the police department and the sheriff's office.

Immediate activity throughout gangland resulted. Patrols were sent out to clamp down the lid on all drinking places, gambling houses and disorderly houses. Scores of men were taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Photographs of identified last gangsters were taken of three men who were taken to the morgue last night as those of three men who occupied a room in a house across the street from the garage where the men were murdered. Mrs. Michael Duddy, who owns the rooming house, made the identification. Police believe the men might have been spies for the killers.

The names on the photographs, supplied by Detroit police, were Eddie Fletcher, Eddie Keywell and Harry Keywell.

A group of five men, leaders in Chicago business and social life, stood beside the stiffened bodies of the seven men and were solemnly sworn in as a coroner's jury to investigate their death.

To add them, a grim re-enactment of the murder was staged at the north side garage, where the slaughter took place.

Even the one living witness to the massacre was placed in his position. The German police dog which was found under a truck after the shooting was taken again to the same place. There was too much reality in the acting for the dog and it raised its voice in a mournful howl as the mock-tragedy was continued.

Funeral services for the seven men will be held during the next three days.

The federal government aided in the drive to clean up Chicago but was a more or less passive assistant. If aliens are found, the federal government will see that they are deported.

Suggestions that the two men seen in uniform after the shooting actually were members of the police force and had taken part in the murders because their cut from the beer profits had not been given out, were not credited by police.

They believe the men dressed in uniforms in order to gain admittance to the garage. But the contention that is known to exist in some parts of the city between members of the police force and gangsters will be probed thoroughly, Swanson said.

TRUTH STRANGER

Xenians who read "Hootch", a story by Charles Francis Cox that ran in serial form in a national magazine recently, will recall the similarity between the gang-shooting climax in the story and the recent gang murders in Chicago.

In the story, the writer contrived to have one bootlegging gang wipe out four of an enemy gang, including a corrupt police captain and three of his henchmen. The killings were done in a liquor garage, the assassins shooting from cover with machine guns and other weapons.

Proving truth is stranger than fiction, the Chicago wholesale killing was almost similar in character, but seven were killed instead of four and the murders were committed in daytime instead of at night. Perhaps the fiction murder suggested the daring Chicago real life killing.

While attendants were strapping him in the chair, Koon's eyes glanced quickly over the witnesses, and just before the death mask was adjusted, he moved his lips in prayer.

COAL RIOTS FOLLOW FUEL SHORTAGES IN COLD BOUND EUROPE

Intense Suffering Continues With No Relief In Sight

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Suffering grew more intense today as the European cold wave, almost unprecedented in history, tightened its grasp on the continent and the British Isles.

Coal riots were reported in Breslau, Silesia, and food shortages were admitted officially in Berlin with predictions of rationing.

The death toll mounted to approximately 200 today. Eight aged people died in Sandwich, England, from the cold.

A bride was frozen to death near Petrokov, Poland, while she was riding with her husband in a farm wagon. They were going to Petrokov to celebrate their wedding.

Six ships which German battle ships had freed from ice barriers in the Langerhans belt were caught behind another ice barrier and their destruction was feared.

Meteorologists gave no encouragement to the coal-hungry Europeans. On the contrary, in Germany they predicted the disconcerting weather would continue.

Meanwhile, Greenland, Iceland, and northern Norway complained of the heat. Eskimos said snows were melting and they could not use their hunting sledges.

Temperatures were so low in Switzerland yesterday that all ice sport meets were abandoned for the present.

Drinking water cost fifteen pfennigs (about two cents) a bucket in the Holslein cities of Stade and Guelphstadt, where municipal water cars were distributing it attempting to meet the shortage.

The Lauchens Company was forced to abandon attempts to send relief to ice-bound ships in the Baltic.

The Wurm River in Germany, was clogged with ice and overflowing, threatening to submerge the Karlsruhe in the northern part of the city which supplies all North Bavaria with power.

Emergency food measures have been introduced in the Netherlands where, for the first time within the memory of the living, people could walk from Enkhuizen across the Sudee Zee to the island of Urk, a distance of fifteen miles.

Many inhabitants fled from Alach, Germany, or the Wurm, because ice floods had swollen the river to flood stage.

Railway service in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and the Balkan countries was completely paralyzed. Many trains remained prisoners in huge snowdrifts today.

Eighty per cent of the coal supplies of Vienna was exhausted and the University of Vienna was closed to save coal.

Vienna citizens were notified they could bathe today. A no-bathing ban was imposed last Saturday when a water shortage threatened.

The cold, combined with fuel shortages, forced many Brussels industries to close temporarily and 100,000 persons were idle.

KOON MEETS DEATH SILENTLY PRAYING

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 16.—With a silent prayer on his lips, Everett Koon, 29, alias Cecil Dean, went to his death in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary last night for the murder of Henry Foss, 72-year-old Marion County farmer on May 29, 1928.

Save for a terse greeting to George Bateman, Nelsonville, O., policeman who was a spectator, Koon maintained a stoic silence to the last.

While attendants were strapping him in the chair, Koon's eyes glanced quickly over the witnesses, and just before the death mask was adjusted, he moved his lips in prayer.

PUBLIC OPINION IS SUPPORTING DRIVE ON CHICAGO CRIME

State's Attorney Is Blaming Police; Clew Is Found

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Keyed to its highest pitch of indignation, public opinion clamored today for a purging of Chicago, a general house-cleaning of the gangster element responsible for the murder of seven men on Valentine's Day.

The bullet-ridden bodies of the seven—Dr. R. H. Schwimmer, optometrist, whose desire for gangster association brought about his death, Frank and Peter Gusenberg, James Clark, Adam Heyer, John May and Albert Weinshank—lay in morgues today, unwitting stimuli for the greatest drive on crime in Chicago history.

The drive was started with a bitter denunciation of the police by State's Attorney John A. Swanson. Calling his police captains before him, Swanson delivered a stinging indictment of their records, warned that "it is easier to send a policeman to jail than it is to send a gangster there," and laid the entire blame for the shooting at the door of the police department and the sheriff's office.

Immediate activity throughout gangland resulted. Patrols were sent out to clamp down the lid on all drinking places, gambling houses and disorderly houses. Scores of men were taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Photographs of three Detroit gangsters were identified last night as those of three men who occupied a room in a house across the street from the garage where the men were murdered. Mrs. Michael Doody, who owns the rooming house, made the identification. Police believe the men might have been spies for the killers.

The names on the photographs, supplied by Detroit police, were Eddie Fletcher, Eddie Keywell and Harry Keywell.

A Chicago five men leaders in Chicago business and social life, stood beside the stiffened bodies of the seven men and were solemnly sworn in as a coroner's jury to investigate their death.

To aid them, a grim re-enactment of the murder was staged at the north side garage, where the slaughter took place.

Even the one living witness to the massacre was placed in his position. The German police dog which was found under a truck after the shooting was taken again to the same place. There was too much reality in the acting for the dog and it raised its voice in a mournful howl as the mock-tragedy was continued.

The federal government aided in the drive to clean up Chicago but was a more or less passive assistant. If aliens are found, the federal government will see that they are deported.

Suggestions that the two men actually were members of the police force and had taken part in the murders because their cut from the beer profits had not been given out, were not credited by police.

They believe the men dressed in uniforms in order to gain admittance to the garage. But the connection that is known to exist in some parts of the city between members of the police force and gangsters will be probed thoroughly, Swanson said.

TRUTH STRANGER

Xenians who read "Hootch," a story by Francis Coe that ran in serial form in a national magazine recently, will recall the similarity between the gang-shooting climax in the story and the recent gang murders in Chicago.

In the story, the writer contrived to have one botlegging gang wipe out four of an enemy gang, including a corrupt police captain and three of his henchmen. The killings were done in a liquor garage, the assassins shooting from cover with machine guns and other weapons.

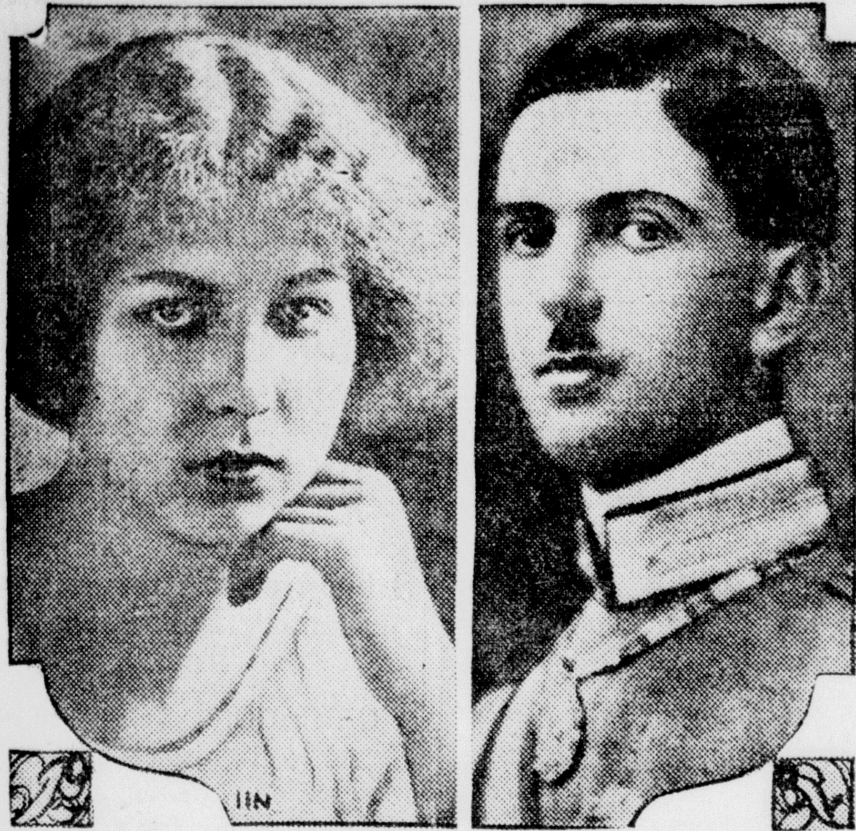

Proving truth is stranger than fiction, the Chicago wholesale killing was almost similar in character, but seven were killed instead of four and the murders were committed in daytime instead of at night. Perhaps the fiction murder suggested the daring Chicago real life killing.

GIVEN $1,000 FOR CORRECT GUESS IN CONTEST

Did you ever try to guess the number of beans in a jar? It's an old game, but it won a grand prize of $1,000 for Mrs. Samuel Kilwein a young wife and mother, living on the Steele farm, Cincinnati Pike, in a contest conducted by The Cloverleaf American, a farm magazine published at St. Paul.

The advertisement announcing the contest appeared about four weeks ago in The Gazette. Mrs. Kilwein was one of 500 Greene County people who sent in answers. The contest closed February 6. A few days ago she was notified that out of 15,000 contestants from every part of the United States, she alone had guessed that the pictured jar held 219 beans, exactly.

There were twenty-five prizes offered, the second, $500, going to an Indiana contestant.

The second feature of the contest has not been decided. This is regarding the promptness of the receipt of the subscriptions to the magazine which featured the circulation contest. Mrs. Kilwein and her friends are hoping that some more of the prize money will reach her.

ITALIAN HISTORIAN TO LECTURE BEFORE ANTIOCH STUDENTS

Students and faculty members of Antioch College will hear lectures February 28 and March 1 by Prof. Gaetano Salvemini, historian, author of note, and an ardent liberal in Italian politics, who has been an uncompromising opponent of Fascism from its start.

Prof. Salvemini has held the chair of medieval and modern history at the Universities of Messina, Pisa and Florence in Italy and his lectures at Antioch will cover a variety of subjects of international importance.

The professor returned to the United States last January 4 from his native country and has given and will give lectures before the New School of Social Research in New York City every Tuesday during January, February and March. Most of his lectures have been expressed in his writings which are extensive and cover medieval and modern history, education and politics.

His personal history is also interesting. He was affiliated with the Italian Socialist party from 1895 to 1910, and was a severe critic of the revolutionary violence and of the reformist opportunism within the party from 1902 to 1910, at the end of which time he deserted his party's ranks.

Always an opponent of Fascism, he was arrested in June, 1925 on a charge of participating in a clandestine paper, but the amnesty of July 31, 1925 cut short the trial.

This system was inaugurated last year but may be discarded this year in order to give the weaker teams an equal chance of reaching the final rounds.

CITY FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETIES FORMED

Formation of a city federation of Women's Missionary societies was completed when the annual World Day of Prayer for Missions at the First Presbyterian Church was observed Friday afternoon and evening.

The organization will be known as "The Federation of Women's Missionary Societies of Xenia, Ohio." It will be headed by Mrs. J. Robert Bryson, Second United Presbyterian Church, as president. Mrs. George Street, Trinity M. E. Church, first vice president; Mrs. Joel R. Lunsford, First Baptist Church, second vice president; Mrs. Ora Whittington, First Presbyterian Church, secretary and Mrs. Russell Burkett, Friends Church, treasurer. Committee appointments were deferred until the next meeting.

The federation will have two meetings each year; the annual meeting in the autumn at a date to be determined by the president, and the other meeting the first Friday in Lent, the date of the annual observance of the world day of prayer. The constitution submitted by the committee, Mrs. J. P. White, Mrs. Tilford and Mrs. R. Lunsford, was adopted. Afternoon and evening sessions of the World Day of Prayer were well attended and interesting programs touching the home and foreign field were rendered.

Mrs. Grover C. Crawford was the leader of the introductory praise service in the afternoon, and the afternoon subject "One in Service" was led by Mrs. R. A. Dorman. Mrs. William H. Tilford gave "Messages of the Jerusalem Conference. This conference which was held from March 24 to April 8 last year, brought together 240 people from the "four corners of the earth," Mrs. Tilford pointed out, thirty-four of them from North America.

They were housed in temporary barracks on the Mount of Olives and visited all the historic sacred spots in Palestine. The closing sermon of the last service of the inspiring meeting was preached by Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York on Easter Sunday.

Mrs. Tilford pointed out that this was the first meeting of this nature, bringing together peoples from all nations, ever held by the Protestant churches.

Miss Faye Ledbetter presided capably as leader of the evening subject "One in Service." Mrs. F. R. Woodruff's subject was "Religious Work in Indian Schools," and Mrs. George Street's, "Immigrant Work."

The flag procession by twenty-one girls at the offertory was impressive and beautiful. The two leaders dressed in white, carried the Christian flag and the flag of the United States. Those following were attired to represent different nations and carried the flags of the respective nations, which were grouped around the Christian and United States flags in a standard at the altar.

Mrs. B. E. Turner was leader of the subject "One in Service." Miss Bertha Beebe talked on the subject of "Christian Literature for Women and Children in Mission Fields." "Women's Union Christian Colleges in Foreign Fields" was Miss Margaret Ballen-tyne's theme.

Speakers pointed out that last year 1,390 cities observed the World Day of Prayer for Missions, at which meetings $5,000 were contributed. The sum contributed at all the services is divided equally between the home and foreign work.

Miss Marjorie Street was in charge of the instrumental music on the program. Miss Zella Soward and Mrs. A. L. Oglesbee sang at the evening program.

Mrs. Sophia M. Chamberlin, 77, died at the home of her son, A. D. Chamberlin, of Jobe Bros., department store, 101 E. Church St., at 6:20 a. m. Saturday. She had been ill since last Monday with pleurisy and pneumonia.

Mrs. Chamberlin was here on a visit with her son, but had previously made her home with her daughter, Mrs. C. D. Lyon, Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Chamberlin was born May 27, 1851 and was the last member of her immediate family. Her husband preceded her in death years ago. Surviving besides her son and daughter are two grandchildren, Ned and Janet Chamberlin.

GIVEN $1,000 FOR CORRECT GUESS IN CONTEST. Did you ever try to guess the number of beans in a jar? It's an old game, but it won a grand prize of $1,000 for Mrs. Samuel Kilwein a young wife and mother, living on the Steele farm, Cincinnati Pike, in a contest conducted by the Cloverleaf American, a farm magazine published at St. Paul.

The advertisement announcing the contest appeared about four weeks ago in The Gazette.

Mrs. Kilwein was one of 500 Greene County people who sent in answers. The contest closed February 6. A few days ago she was notified that out of 15,000 contestants from every part of the United States, she alone had guessed that the pictured jar held 219 beans, exactly.

There were twenty-five prizes offered, the second, $500, going to an Indiana contestant.

The second feature of the contest has not been decided. This is regarding the promptness of the receipt of the subscriptions to the magazine which featured the circulation contest. Mrs. Kilwein and her friends are hoping that some more of the prize money will reach her.

LEGION OFFICER TO HELP VETERANS HERE FILE CLAIMS

E. E. Kieffer, Columbus, O., department service officer representing state headquarters of American Legion, will be in Xenia Tuesday afternoon and evening, February 19, to assist Greene County World War veterans in filing adjusted compensation claims, it is announced.

Mr. Kieffer will be stationed at post hall of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, in the basement of the Court House between 4 and 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Ex-service men who believe themselves entitled to disability compensation due to the late war are being advised to adjust their claims as soon as possible. Mr. Kieffer will assist veterans in filing claims. Time for filing such claims expires January 1, 1930, but the chance to have them filed through the state officer Tuesday should not be lost. It is warned.

Veterans are also advised that they may still take out war risk insurance.

A called meeting of the local Legion post will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night, it is announced.

ITALIAN HISTORIAN TO LECTURE BEFORE ANTIOCH STUDENTS. Students and faculty members of Antioch College will hear lectures February 28 and March 1 by Prof. Gaetano Salvemini, historian, an author of note, and an ardent liberal in Italian politics, who has been an uncompromising opponent of Fascism from its start.

Prof. Salvemini has held the chair of medieval and modern history at the Universities of Messina, Pisa and Florence in Italy and his lectures at Antioch will cover a variety of subjects of international importance.

The professor returned to the United States last January from his native country and has given and will give lectures before the New School of Social Research in New York City every Tuesday during January, February and March. Most of his lectures have been expressed in his writings which are extensive and cover medieval and modern history, education and politics.

His personal history is also interesting. He was affiliated with the Italian Socialist party from 1895 to 1910, and was a severe critic of the revolutionary violence and of the reformist opportunism within the party from 1902 to 1910, at the end of which time he deserted his party's ranks.

Always an opponent of Fascism, he was arrested in June, 1925 on a charge of participating in a clandestine paper, but the amnesty of July 31, 1925 cut short the trial.

TOURNEY DRAWINGS SCHEDULED MONDAY. Drawings for the first round of the annual Greene County Class B High School Basketball Tournament to be held at Xenia Central High gymnasium Friday and Saturday, February 22 and 23, will take place at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at a meeting of school superintendents at the office of County School Superintendent H. C. Aultman in the Court House.

Announcement is made that nine boys' and nine girls' team will participate in the tourney.

Superintendents will also thrash out the question of "seeding" the admittedly stronger teams for the event. This system was inaugurated last year but may be discarded this year in order to give the weaker teams an equal chance of reaching the final rounds.

TWO AUTOISTS GET ICY BATH IN CREEK. W. L. Wilson, near Cedarville and Campbell Bruce, a companion, were given an icy bath when Wilson's automobile skidded on the Columbus Pike, struck the balustrade of a small bridge, and turned over on its side in the cold water of the stream.

Wilson and Bruce liberated themselves and crawled out after the car had partially filled with water. The car was badly damaged and it took about four hours to get it out of the stream and back onto the road.

Mayor Thomas H. Braden of Lowell, Mass., believing in municipal retrenchment, begins by cutting his own pay from $5,000 to $4,000.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD KNOWETH THE HEART—The heart is deceitful above all things, and deperately wicked: who can know it? Jeremiah 17:9

PUTTING TEETH IN NEW PACT

Senator Capper's resolution providing that the United States shall institute an armament embargo against signatories of Secretary Kellogg's anti-war pact who resort to arms in violation of it is in itself a violation of the spirit of that instrument. All that the signatories were asked to assume was the moral obligation to renounce war as an instrument of national policy in adjusting international disputes. The sanctionless nature of the treaty was what commended it to a large element in this country that has steadfastly refused to enter the covenant of the League of Nations, which would impose on us the necessity of joining with other members of the league in deciding the question of aggression and applying sanctions to the party adjudged the aggressor. Secretary Kellogg's treaty does not outlaw war as a means of self-defense and sets up no machinery for the determination of "war guilt." Senator Capper's armament embargo could not be laid until after the United States had determined that question for itself, always a risky and uncertain thing to do; and had exposed itself to the inevitable hatred of the aggrieved party.

Aside from the fact that without also laying an embargo on foodstuffs, which will remain as important as arms until nations learn how to fight on empty stomachs, and on monetary loans, with which belligerents can buy armament in other countries and leave us holding a sack full of uncollectable war debts, a punitive armament embargo would hamstring the anti-war pact by alienating the sympathy that it attracts because of its purely moral obligation. The adoption of Senator Capper's resolution might easily do more than a dozen cruiser bills to make other signatories think twice before ratifying the treaty that he is so anxious to equip with teeth.

THE CUP THAT CHEERS

Federal and state prohibition enforcement officers very rarely find among liquors seized by them any pure, genuine samples of actual whisky, wine, champagne or beer, asserts Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, who declares that in the fact that so-called "real liquors" are not to be found in seizures, lies an opportunity for public information which might be used to good advantage by the federal and state prohibition commissioners.

"In the case of the Columbus, O., office of the federal prohibition service," Dr. Cherrington's statement says, "with at least 150 samples, not a solitary sample of genuine liquor was found. Many of the samples were rank poisons, and the chemist of the office, H. G. Alford, declares that 'real' liquor never is found in places raided nor in automobiles.

"Such an exhibit ought to be made at state fairs, county fairs, young people's gatherings, colleges, high schools and elsewhere, showing prospective customers of bootleggers and rum runners that the risk these customers take is tremendous. Not only is it a practical impossibility to buy real liquor, but the chances are strongly in the majority that the liquor offered by illegal dispensers is poisonous, and, in many cases, absolutely deadly.

"Many persons believe that they are getting genuine whisky because of the bottle, the label or the revenue stamp, but any prohibition commissioner's office will demonstrate to the inquirer that such bottles, labels and revenue stamps are counterfeits, and the contents of the bottles synthetic."

"The 'cup that cheers' should have great cheering qualities to overcome this discouraging information for those it affects.

"Why should Hoover keep Mellon?" says the Springfield Republican. Probably because he wants him.

THE FAILURE OF ORGANIZATION

The real failure of much organization work lies in the refusal of the members of an organization to feel personal responsibility for corporate action. They are glad enough to have their names on the roll of all sorts of organizations that stand for all sorts of things, but they are not willing to bear any real personal responsibility or accept any actual responsibility. Such persons merely encumber an organization. They mean nothing and less than nothing to its life and usefulness.

SHIRKING LEADERSHIP

There is no longer and more deadly failure than the failure to assume the leadership of which one is capable. There are, of course, few people who really have the capacity for leadership. Most of us do well if we can make a fair job of following. But there are men and women who are competent for leadership. For the most shirk is immeasurably worse than for the incompetent leadership to be as they are. The trouble is that many, knowing their capacity for leadership, care more for comfort than for doing a real part.

OLD SENECA

There is inspiration in these words of the old Roman Seneca, in the midst of the storms of life: "Oh Neptune, thou canst save me if thou wilt, or thou canst drown me. But whether or not, I will hold my rudder true."

NERVOUSNESS

There is sometimes real cause—organic cause—for nervousness. Usually this is not the case. Most people who suffer from nervousness suffer because they are not sure of themselves. They are at odds with themselves. They are in the midst of a mental conflict. They know which way they ought to go, but they are not strong enough to move. They are holding to practices which they know they should discontinue. One part of nature within them is out of harmony with the other part. In the midst of conflict, in the refusal to surrender what is bad and to content with what is good—or what they really believe to be good—they are tense and nervous. The malady is quite curable, without medicine, though not always without difficulty and much patience.

ALARM OVER DRUG TRAFFIC EXPRESSED

By FIORELLA H. LAGUARDIA
Congressman from New York.
(Fiorillo H. Laguardia was born in New York City, December 11, 1882. He was graduated in law from New York university. From 1901 to 1904 he was with the American consulate in Austria. An interpreter at Ellis Island, for three years, he began practicing law in New York City. In 1910, when he was elected deputy attorney general for two years. He was elected to congress in 1915 and has served continuously since, except for a period of two years. In 1919 he was elected president of the board of aldermen, New York City. He served as a commander in the U. S. air service in 1917, and was stationed on the Italian front.)

It is apparent that the use of habit-forming drugs is increasing to an alarming degree all over the country. This is especially true in large cities.

Police reports, court records and hospital statistics prove beyond doubt the alarming increase in the unlawful use of narcotics. The extent of unlawful importation of narcotics now has reached an amount to be nothing short of national scandal.

The margin of profit in this unlawful traffic is so great that the total amount reaches several million dollars every year. Taking a conservative estimate of various statements made by police departments, customs and government and state officials, the value of drugs unlawfully imported during the past six months has been estimated to be between $25,000,000 and $40,000,000. There is such a variety in the estimates and such discrepancy as to the extent of actual control of this traffic that an immediate survey is imperative.

The amount of raw opium permitted to be imported has increased from $2,343 pounds in 1924 to 140,172 pounds in 1928, and it is conceded that this is only a small fraction of the amount of actual manufactured drugs unlawfully imported every year. While it is true that congress has authorized two farms for the care and treatment of drug addicts, the big constructive thing before this country today is to prevent and wipe out the unlawful traffic in narcotics and a habit-forming drug.

It seems ridiculous to provide means of cure without taking drastic steps to prevent the unlawful sale of drugs responsible for creating addicts, thereby suppressing the root of this evil.

Only the brave desert the fair. 'Tis love that makes the world go round with that pained expression.

ROCKEFELLERS' MILLIONS!

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

There are so many unhappy things that can happen to our feet. It just goes to prove that neglect has a way of exacting its own penalties. If we took reasonable care of these very important members of our body we should probably never have the corns, bunions and callouses which make life miserable for the average woman.

The woman who has "sick" feet is losing a great deal. I can not think of anything more calculated to take the joy out of life, and the happiness out of existence than aching feet. We all of us know at least one woman who can't outlast a shopping tour, who refuses to take a walk, who insists upon sitting out every other dance and who flits restlessly to look at the most provocative moon, simply because her feet hurt. Maybe that woman is you. Do you know, it spoils your own pleasure and other people's too, when you have not educated your feet to a proper knowledge of their duty. Of course, corns do not grow from narrow or ill-fitting shoes, and I am afraid if you are going to correct them you will have to change your shoes. If you have corns, by all means learn the immediate relief which can be obtained by the use of corn plaster and corn files.

The man who first originated these first aids to aching feet should be especially remembered in heaven. If you have a real "pet" corn, you had best see a chiropodist about it. It is a very unsafe thing to try and remove it yourself, and many a case of infection has followed an amateur surgical operation performed on a corn.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—For quite a while after the apple beamed Isaac Newton, the law of gravitation was considered as nutty an idea as many folk of today consider the Einstein theory of relativity.

I quote Dr. William Bowie, head of the geodesy division of geodetic survey. "I had consulted the doctor as the likeliest savant in Washington to explain relativity to me. All I knew was that the theory is infinitely mathematical. Geodesy is superlatively a mathematical science, and Dr. Bowie is the world's highest authority on it."

"Doctor," I asked, humbly, "is it possible for an ignorant layman to get any glimmering of a notion what Professor Einstein is driving at?"

"I can't say as to a layman," replied Dr. Bowie, "but if I may speak as a scientist I'm accepted as such by a considerable number of us that I haven't been able to get of learned societies, my answer the alibiest looking as to what he's driving at."

Yet in the next breath the doctor related that story about Newton.

Einstein also will clarify himself in due season.

Then perhaps his theory will look as simple as Newton's law does now.

However, we must remember that that law of Newton's isn't really a law, either—it's only a theory and under attack too. Einstein attacks it, for one, with reams of mysterious mathematics.

"There's likewise a theory," supplemented Dr. Bowie, "that things are not held in place by a pull, but kept in place by a push—that the pressure of a cosmic bombardment prevents my desk, for instance, from flying off into space."

"In the past," reflected the doctor, considering the proposition from another angle, "we have been in the habit of regarding everything about us in accordance with the evidence afforded to us by our five senses. Recently an unknown quantity has entered into our calculations."

"Our senses tell us nothing about electricity, radio activity, the ether."

"When primitive man encountered a new phenomenon, he invented a new god to account for it. The Einstein theory?—is that our new scientific god?—to explain these manifestations concerning which our senses are no guide to us."

Now, I would have supposed both, in their very nature, obviously infinite—that any ordinary mind could see it—let alone a scientist's.

I asked Dr. Bowie and he nodded agreement. "Time and space, yes," he acquiesced "but not necessarily matter. I should incline to believe our universe of matter limited."

"Of course," ventured the doctor, cautiously, "Einstein MAY be a super-man, who has pierced, or nearly pierced, the secrets of infinity. "But yet," a strong doubt violently lingered. "The fact is," he said, finally, "when anybody tells me that a straight line is not the shortest distance between two points, it strains my imagination terribly."

Mock Tomato Salad—Select apples that will hold their shape after being cooked. Core and peel the apples. Boil for five minutes: One part sugar to three parts water, and enough of the little cinnamon candies to make a fairly deep red. Add the apples, turn frequently, and cook until done. Serve on lettuce leaf with cold marshmallows added to the salad dressing.

Suggestions
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes
To make the best, fluffiest mashed potatoes when you do not have cream, heat the milk that you put into them. Do not boil nor scald it, but just beat it. Add the milk, a little at a time, beating well.

Kitchen Floor Tiling
Many of our kitchen floors have become objects of beauty now that they are covered with cork tiling in bright colors and fanciful designs. This popular floor covering is practical and durable as well. One of the many advantages of a cork floor in the kitchen is the ease with which it can be kept clean. Since it does not readily absorb grease and dirt, all it needs is a daily mopping with soap suds and warm water. It should be rinsed with a clear warm water and dried with a soft cloth or mop.

SUNK!

"Married her."

Diet and Health

Tablets for Gaining
Mrs. W., who weighs 112 pounds, and should weigh 150 pounds more, wanting to gain, took eight bottles of advertised, guaranteed gaining tablets. When she finished the eight bottles, instead of gaining, she had lost eight pounds. She asked the druggist for a refund of her money, but he said they did not stand back of the advertising company's guarantee. As soon as she stopped taking the tablets she went back to her former weight.

You should write to the concern that puts out these tablets, Mrs. W., but you probably will not get your money back from them, either. Then you should write to the United States public health service at Washington. I realize that I have seen something. All of my overweight followers will want the name of these "gaining" tablets! But don't write in for it, I won't give it. The reason that such nostrums reduce is that they upset the health.

You have the Peterizing pamphlet by now, Mrs. W., as you sent in 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, so I hope to hear from you soon with the news that you have gained your 150 pounds.

"I wrote you six months ago, but as yet have not seen my answer in the paper, and naturally I am very much disappointed. You have written on many subjects that are more uncommon than mine, and I can't see why my question wasn't considered. This is my trouble:
"I have proud flesh in the passage from the bladder, which is very painful. I have had many treatments of silver nitrate and the electric needle used on it once, but neither seemed to do it any good. Must I carry this around all my life? This inflammation does not extend into the bladder, only around the opening. I have had it for five years, so you can imagine how discouraged I am. I am 28 years old. The inflammation is very painful and causes frequent urination. Please, will you answer my question? MRS. G."

It is impossible for me to answer all of the questions I get in the column—some because they are of a nature that they cannot be written on in a newspaper, and others because they are rare diseases which must have the personal supervision of a physician. However, Mrs. G., I had recently answered a similar question to yours, but evidently you missed it. I'm sorry.

Your trouble is known as a caruncle. A caruncle may be a normal growth; for instance, the little red mass in the corner of the eye is known as the lacrymal caruncle. Your growth is a urethral caruncle, and is not a normal growth. The cause is not known. Sometimes it is associated with chronic inflammation of the urethra, such as may come from an infection or be the result of a too concentrated or irritating urine.

My textbooks say that the only treatment for the urethral caruncle is the removal by cautery, or by the knife. This condition is not a cancer.

Go to a specialist in women's disorders—a gynecologist—or to a surgeon, for indeed it is not necessary for you to carry this painful thing all your life.

Tomorrow: Broadening Hips.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"All's fair in love and war," said someone a long time ago, and many people have saved their consciences when pursuing a not too honorable course, by quoting it. Friends may be trusted except where love interests clash. Then the old saw's brought forth to prove that "winning" a friend's sweetheart is all right.

Women are accused of having less honor about love affairs than men. Possibly the love side of women's lives has been overemphasized, and less stress laid on honor in such matters, but they by no means have a monopoly of the idea that it is all right to get the one you love by fair means or foul, even when the one is the property of a friend.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: My girl friend and I are very good friends in one way, but in another we are enemies. Every time I fall in love with a boy she uses any method to vamp him away from me, and I am not always sure that her methods are honorable. She has been very kind to me in many ways, and I feel I owe her a lot, but do you think I should allow her to always take my boy friends away from me? Should I use her methods to take them back?"

"UNDECIDED RETTIE." I think you are entirely justified in "vamping" your own boy friends back, Rettie. She vamps last may vamp best, you know. However, I'd do it in a perfectly good natured and honorable way. No man or boy—in fact, nothing—is worth lowering one's standards of honor for.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: While home for my vacation this winter I was allowed to have dates for the first time. I, however, had a boy visiting me whom mother had always let me go out with. This boy is eight or nine years older than I, and naturally I preferred to be with boys closer to my own age, even though I was very much in love with him. When he found out that I had had several dates with a boy he dislikes, he got very angry. He has always written to me very often, but this time he hasn't even written to thank me for having spent the vacation with me. I really owe him a letter. Should I write him as though nothing had happened? Should I give up my other friends or him? One of the two must be done. BIG BROWN EYES."

If you were not discourteous to him, as your guest, he had no reason to be angry about the other boy, as you are young and not engaged to him. If you slighted him, might reasonably be angry, but even then he should have been courteous enough to have written and thanked you for your hospitality. I wouldn't give up other friends if I were you. You might write a friendly letter, saying you had not heard from him and thought possibly he was ill, and if he doesn't answer, drop him.

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl of 17, but being the youngest of my family my parents have considered me a child and treated me as such. They have never allowed me to go out with boys except a neighbor whom I do not like particularly. I know I have done wrong, but lately, unable to resist their invitations, on other pretenses, I have gone with them. There is one with whom I am greatly in love, and I know that he loves me. We wish to become engaged, but we have not heard from my parents' approval and consent. Can you advise me?"

"HOPELESS." I suppose I should scold, but I think you are the victim of shortsighted parents. Hopeless. I should certainly harp constantly on the subject, that you are nearly of legal age and should have more liberty, and try to get them to let your boy friend come to the house and meet them. Try not to be silly, and keep the engagement idea out of it for a while until your people have a chance to look the boy over and approve of him. You are pretty young to be thinking of an engagement, although I know how you feel—just can't live without one another, can you?

THE PARTRIDGE'S PEACE TREATY

"What a wise little son it is," said Mother Partridge, suddenly turning around, but the boy saw that she was smiling.

"I hope when you grow up, Fear-No-Harm, if ever you feel like fighting you, too, will 'take out' on a stump. It would have been a terrible thing if father had broken the truce and fought with his friends today for, as I told you before, this is the season of the year when the Partridges are at peace. Had father picked a fight all the others would have turned upon him and punished him dreadfully for not obeying the terms of the peace treaty, and that would have been the worst thing that could happen to a Partridge—your father would have died of shame."

"Thank goodness my husband remembered his promise in time, and everything is all right now. I don't believe he will lose his temper again in a long, long while. He has taught himself a lesson."

"And while husband is in such a pleasant mood I think I will trot over and tell him you are here, boy. Besides I can't wait another minute to let him know what a clever dance I think he did. Did you ever see anything like it in all your life? No. I know you didn't."

Without giving the boy a chance to say a word, off bustled Mrs. Partridge, and after her followed her children. Even Fear-No-Harm forsook his new friend for a chance to speak to his wonderful parent, and in a moment the boy was left all alone in the shadow of the tree.

Peter watched them cross the clearing, but did not step from behind the sheltering trunk.

"I am not sure that I want to meet Papa Partridge after all," mused Peter. "His proud wife will be so busy admiring me that she will never think of him at all. Even little Fear-No-Harm will forget his Two-Leg friend when he sees the dancers doing their queer cakewalk. If I slip off into the woods, now, nobody will be the wiser."

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

THE FAILURE OF ORGANIZATION

The real failure of much organization work lies in the refusal of the members of an organization to feel personal responsibility for corporate action. They are glad enough to have their names on the roll of all sorts of organizations that stand for all sorts of things, but they are not willing to bear any real personal responsibility or accept any actual responsibility. Such persons merely enumber an organization. They mean nothing and less than nothing to its life and usefulness.

SHIRKING LEADERSHIP

There is no larger and more deadly failure than the failure to assume the leadership of which one is capable. There are, of course, few people who really have the capacity for leadership. Most of us do well if we can make a fair job of following. But there are men and women who are competent for leadership. For the most part, however, the leadership is shirked. The trouble is that many, knowing their capacity for leadership, care more for comfort than for doing a real part.

OLD SENECA

There is inspiration in these words of the old Roman Seneca. In the midst of the storms of life: "Oh Seneca, thou canst save me if thou wilt, or thou canst drown me. But whether or not, I will hold my rudder true."

NERVOUSNESS

There is sometimes real cause—organic cause—for nervousness. Usually this is not the case. Most people who suffer from nervousness suffer because they are not sure of themselves. They are at odds with themselves. They are in the midst of a mental conflict. They know which way they ought to go, but feel not strong enough to move. They are holding to practices which they know they should discontinue. One part of nature within them is out of harmony with the other part. In the midst of conflict, in the refusal to surrender what is bad and be content with what is good—or what they really believe to be good—they are tense and nervous. The malady is quite curable, without medicine, though not always without difficulty and much patience.

ALARM OVER DRUG TRAFFIC EXPRESSED

By FIORELLA H. LAGUARDIA

Congressman From New York. (Fiorella H. Laguardia was born in New York City, December 11, 1882. He was graduated in law from New York university. From 1901 to 1904 he was with the American consulate in Austria. An interpreter at Ellis Island, for three years, he began practicing law in New York City in 1910, where he was elected deputy attorney general for two years. He was elected to congress in 1915 and has served continuously since, except for a period of two years. In 1919 he was elected president of the board of aldermen, New York City. He served as a commander in the U. S. air service in 1917, and was stationed on the Italian front.)

It is apparent that the use of habit-forming drugs is increasing to an alarming degree all over the country. This is especially true in large cities.

Police reports, court records and hospital statistics prove beyond doubt the alarming increase in the unlawful use of narcotics. The extent of unlawful importations of narcotics now has reached an amount to be nothing short of national scandal.

The margin of profit in this unlawful traffic is so great that the total amount reaches several million dollars every year. Taking a conservative estimate of various statements made by police departments, customs and government and state officials, the value of drugs unlawfully imported during the past six months has been estimated to be between $25,000,000 and $40,000,000. There is such a variance as to the estimate of the number of addicts and such discrepancy as to the extent of actual control of this traffic that an immediate survey is imperative.

The amount of raw opium permitted to be imported has increased from $7,343 pounds in 1924 to 140,172 pounds in 1928. It is conceded that this is only a small fraction of the amount of actual manufactured drugs unlawfully imported every year. While it is true that congress has authorized two

ROCKEFELLER'S MILLIONS!

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

There are so many unhappy things that can happen to our feet. It just goes to prove that neglect has a way of exacting its own penalties. If we took reasonable care of these very important members of our body we should probably never have the corns, bunions and callouses which make life miserable for the average woman.

The woman who has "sick" feet is losing a great deal. I cannot think of anything more calculated to take the joy out of life and the happiness out of existence than aching feet. We all of us know at least one woman who cannot outlast a shopping tour, who refuses to take a walk, who insists upon sitting out every other dance and who flatly refuses to look at the most provocative moon, simply because her feet hurt. Maybe that woman is you. Do you know, it spoils your own pleasure and other people's too, when you have not educated your feet to a proper knowledge of their duty. Of course, corns do come from narrow or ill-fitting shoes, and I am afraid if you are going to correct them you will have to change your shoes. If you have corns, by all means, learn the immediate relief which can be obtained by the use of corn plasters and corn files.

The man who first originated these first aids to aching feet should be especially remembered in heaven. If you have a real "corn" you had best see a chiropodist about it. It is a very unsafe thing to try and remove it yourself, and many a case of infection has followed an amateur surgical operation performed on a corn.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—For quite a while after the apple boned Isaac Newton, the law of gravitation was considered as nutty an idea as many folk of today consider the Einstein theory of relativity.

I quote Dr. William Bowie, head of the geodesy division of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, as the likeliest savant in Washington to explain relativity to me. All I knew was that the theory is infinitely mathematical. Geodesy is superlatively a mathematical science, and Dr. Bowie is the world's highest authority on it.

"Doctor," I asked, humbly, "is it possible for an ignorant layman to get any glimmering of a notion what Professor Einstein is driving at?"

"I can't say as to a layman," replied Dr. Bowie, "but if I may speak as a scientist (I'm accepted as such by a considerable number of learned societies), my answer is the slightest looking as to what he's driving at."

Yet in the next breath the doctor related that story about Newton.

It seems that Isaac's mathematical formula was a new one on the wise men of his time, and until he worked the problem out for them in a longer way, but in figures they could understand. "Why," said Dr. Bowie, "they thought he was crazy."

So maybe, surmise the doctor, puts limits on time and space.

Now, I would have supposed both, in their very nature, obviously infinite—that any ordinary mind could see it—let alone a scientist's.

I asked Dr. Bowie and he nodded agreement. "Time and space, yes," he acquiesced, "but not necessarily matter. I should incline to believe our universe of matter limited."

"Of course," ventured the doctor, cautiously, "Einstein MAY be a super-man, who has pierced, or nearly pierced, the secrets of infinity."

"But yet—" a strong doubt evidently lingered. "The fact is," he said, finally, "when anybody tells me that a straight line is not the shortest distance between two points, it strains my imagination terribly."

Mock Tomato Salad—Select apples that will hold their shape after being cooked. Core and peel the apples. Boil for five minutes: One part sugar to three parts water, and enough of the little cinnamon candies to make a fairly deep red. Add the apples, turn frequently, and cook until done. Serve on lettuce leaf with cut marshmallows added to the salad dressing.

Suggestions
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes
To make the best, fluffiest mashed potatoes when you do not have cream, heat the milk that you put into them. Do not boil nor scald it, but just heat it. Add the milk, a little at a time, beating well.

Kitchen Floor Tiling
Many of our kitchen floors have become objects of beauty now that they are covered with cork tiling in bright colors and fanciful designs. This popular floor covering is practical and durable as well. One of the many advantages of a cork floor in the kitchen is the ease with which it can be kept clean. Since it does not readily absorb grease and dirt, all it needs is a daily mopping with soap suds and warm water. It should be rinsed with a clear warm water and dried with a soft cloth or mop.

SUNK!
"Say, Jack, are you still engaged to that awfully homely Smith girl?"

"Well, I should say not." "Good for you. To tell you the truth, old man, you certainly had my sympathy. She was the most awful mess I've ever seen in any place. But how in the world did you get out of it?"

"Married her."

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Tablets for Gaining
Mrs. W., who weighs 112 pounds and should weigh 15 pounds more, wanting to gain, took eight bottles of advertised, guaranteed gaining tablets. When she finished the eight bottles, instead of gaining, she had lost eight pounds. She asked the druggist for a refund of her money, but he said they did not stand back of the advertising company's guarantee. As soon as she stopped taking the tablets she went back to her former weight.

You should write to the concern that puts out these tablets, Mrs. W., but you probably will not get your money back from them, either. Then you should write to the United States public health service at Washington. I realize that I have started something. All of my overweight followers will want the name of these "gaining" tablets! But don't write for it, I won't give it. The reason that such nostrums reduce is that they upset the health.

You have the Petersizing pamphlet by now, Mrs. W., as you sent in 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, so I hope to hear from you soon with the news that you have gained your 15 pounds.

"I wrote you six months ago, but as yet have not seen my answer from the blower, which is very painful. I have had many treatments of silver nitrate and the electric needle used on it once but neither seemed to do it any good. Must I carry this around all my life? This inflammation does not extend into the bladder, only around the opening. I have had it for five years, so you can imagine how discouraged I am. I am 28 years old. The inflammation is very painful and causes frequent urination. Please, will you answer my question? MRS. G."

It is impossible for me to answer all of the questions I get in the column—some because they are of a nature that they cannot be written on in a newspaper, and others because they are rare diseases which must have the personal supervision of a physician. However, Mrs. G., I had recently answered a similar question to yours, but evidently you missed it. I'm sorry.

Your trouble is known as a caruncle. A caruncle may be a normal growth; for instance, the little red mass in the corner of the eye is known as the lachrymal caruncle. Your growth is a urethral caruncle, and is not a normal growth. The cause is not known. Sometimes it is associated with chronic inflammation of the urethra, such as may come from an infection, or be the result of a too concentrated or irritating urine.

My textbook says that the only treatment for the urethral caruncle is the removal by cautery, or by the knife. This condition is not a cancer.

Go to a specialist in women's disorders—a gynecologist—or to a surgeon, for indeed it is not necessary for you to carry this painful thing all your life.

CEDARVILLE BEATS SPRINGFIELD TEAM

Cedarville College basketballers achieved victory for the third time in their last four starts by edging out a 37 to 35 win over Springfield business College on the Y. M. C. A. floor at Springfield Friday night.

Cedarville was scheduled to meet Bliss Business College in a return game at Columbus Friday night, but the game was moved up to Saturday night and the Springfield contest booked in its place.

Turner, forward, led the Cedarville scoring with twelve points. Smith followed with ten. Coy, center, tallied thirteen points for the visitors.

In the preliminary, Cedarville College girls downed the Springfield Business College sextet 25 to 14.

GET YOUR PROPER WEIGHTS

State Inspectors
Warn Of Faulty
Measures

Watch your weights and measures.

This is the warning given housewives and others by the food and dairy division of the state board of agriculture.

O. J. Bailey, new chief of that division is promising strict enforcement of the law, and advises that violations be reported promptly to the county auditor who is county sealer of weights and measures under the law.

James Martin, inspector in the food and dairy division who was here this week says that violations of the food and dairy laws will not be tolerated and that prosecutions will follow them.

"Housekeepers should be careful about buying from strangers," according to Inspector Martin. Short weights and measures and adulterated food products are more likely to be received from them than from the regular dealers, he pointed out.

With the maple syrup season coming on, the inspector warned about the necessity of watching for adulterations of this product.

EAST HIGH DEFEATS COLUMBUS TOSSERS

Led by Parker, East High School cagers scored a 23 to 17 victory over the Columbus team in a return basketball game at East High gymnasium Friday night.

Parker tallied eleven points while Garrett made ten. Smith and Baber guarded well, and Rice also showed to advantage at a forward post, registering one basket. The visiting quintet was held scoreless during the fourth quarter.

He was born April 3, 1926 and besides his parents, leaves three brothers, George, Joseph and Grover.

Central Beats Greenville By One Point, 21 To 20

BUELL LEADS XENIA ATTACK AS CLOSE ONE IS PULLED FROM FIRE

Greenville Nearly Gives Blue And White Dark
Brown Taste; Buccaneers Not In Pink; Meet
Piqua High Next Week.

Xenia Central High School, 1928 champions of the Miami Valley League, is still riding on the crest of a basketball wave, against Greenville High's suddenly dangerous team came within an eye-lash of capsizing the Buccaneer craft before being nosed out by the champions by one point, 21 to 20, in a league encounter at Greenville Friday night.

The Bucs thereby stretched their league winning streak to four straight games and nine in a row over a period of two years in the circuit. It was the tenth victory in eleven starts for Central this season.

As Piqua High sprang a surprise by defeating Sidney 19 to 18, the leadership of the league is still in dispute. Both Xenia and Piqua are undefeated in the league and the stage is set for the final game on the schedule, the tilt to decide the championship of the league for the 1929 season, on Piqua's floor next Thursday night.

Although giving a rather ragged and on the whole, disappointing exhibition, Xenia still had enough power to pull out a victory over Greenville, despite the fact the Bucs were obviously having an off day.

Xenia was expected to dispose of Greenville in a casual, matter-of-fact way, but the fifth placeers were deceptive both in appearance and methods. Except in the third quarter the teams were rarely more than a point or two apart, and Xenia stuck to its guns with just a little more persistence than its rival. Xenia led 5 to 2 in the first quarter, 9 to 8 at the half, 19 to 11 at the end of the third period and then stemmed a Greenville rally in the nick of time to achieve victory in the last period.

As a matter of fact, Greenville was ahead only for a short interval in the second quarter, but fought a game uphill battle all the way, and was a constant threat. The Bucs were simply stale. Greenville came close to victory, but close doesn't count, except perhaps in quints. So the one point looked like a million when the final gun sounded.

Bob Buell, Buccaneer center, was the only member of the team to display anything like his usual skill. Buell never played a better floor game, shot accurately and tallied nine points. Everhardt and Hughes, forwards, were outstanding for Greenville, scoring twelve and six points, respectively.

Buell started the ball rolling with a basket and followed up with a free throw. Everhardt shot a fielder and Buell came back with another. Greenville spurted and assumed a three-point advantage on a basket by Everhardt and two points by Hughes. Fielders in succession by Hughes, Fielders by Buell and Smith put the Bucs out in front again by one point at the intermission.

In the third period Xenia showed symptoms of a return to form, outscoring the local quintet 10 to 3. Smith made a foul for Xenia and Stenley did likewise for Greenville. Bell crashed through with a field goal, Scurry made a charity throw and Bell sank another basket. A foul shot by Everhardt was followed by successive baskets by Scurry and Buell. As the quarter ended, Sink sank a foul for Greenville.

The fourth period produced a Greenville comeback. Xenia's lead was reduced to one point.

At the end of the period, Buell started the ball rolling with a basket and followed up with a free throw. Everhardt shot a fielder and Buell came back with another. Greenville spurted and assumed a three-point advantage on a basket by Everhardt and two points by Hughes. Fielders in succession by Hughes, Fielders by Buell and Smith put the Bucs out in front again by one point at the intermission.

Central High Will Play Springfield Here Next Tuesday

No n-League Opponent
Will Be Test For Buccaneers

Xenia Central High's up-and-coming basketball team, with ten victories to its credit against one defeat this season, will meet Springfield High School in the final home game of the season at Central gymnasium Tuesday night.

Springfield has been experiencing a basketball season almost as disappointing as its 1928 football season, but it is represented by inexperienced players. Making allowances for due improvement since the season opened, the Bucs, unless they give an improved exhibition over the Greenville tussle, may have their hands full in defeating the Wildcats.

Springfield was defeated by Middletown 27 to 17 several weeks ago, practically the same margin by which Xenia lost to the Middies. Following the Springfield tilt, the Bucs meet Piqua High School in the Miami Valley League championship final on Thursday night at Piqua, and then comes the big attraction of the season, the closing game with the great Stivers High School quintet at Dayton Tuesday, February 26. After that the regional state tournament at Springfield the following Friday.

2923—NEW CHAMPION JEERED

Written Exclusively for Central Press and The Gazette

Amid a chorus of jeers and cat calls and a demonstration that brought out the police reserves, Johnny Dundee was declared junior lightweight champion after a stormy fifteen-round bout with Jack Bernstein at Madison Square Garden, New York, December 17, 1928.

The decision of the judges did not meet with the approval of fans or critics alike. Dundee was held up to ridicule by the press, but the decision stood.

For the first ten rounds, Bernstein, the defending title holder, set the pace. He backed the Italian around the ring, working his gloves like pistons. Round after round went to the champion, until the fight was two-thirds over.

From the eleventh to the fifteenth Dundee took the lead and it was Bernstein who was forced back. Perhaps the judges overlooked the early rounds in the fiery flash of Dundee. Perhaps the fans did not see the fine points.

The betting was eight to five in Bernstein's favor before the first bell, and the result was one of the outstanding fistic puzzles of the decade.

THE MEADOWLARKS—Learning by Observation

FINAL GAME BETWEEN XENIA AND PIQUA WILL DECIDE LOOP TITLE

These two teams share the league leadership. Both are undefeated in four games and the championship will be decided next Thursday.

Sidney was expected to tumble Piqua from the peak position Friday night at Piqua but nothing like that happened. Trailing 14 to 12 at the half, Piqua played a cool, methodical game, controlled possession of the ball and edged out a 19 to 18 victory.

On the other hand, Xenia, defending champion, behaved anything like a real monarch, and nosed out Greenville 21 to 20 only after a terrific struggle in a listless game. League standing follows:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.	P.	O.P.
Xenia	4	0	1.000	126	61
Piqua	4	0	1.000	108	58
Sidney	3	2	.600	112	89

Greenville	1	4	.200	100	117

COLUMBUS PIKE RESIDENCE IS DESTROYED BY FIRE SATURDAY

The large fifteen-roomed frame dwelling on a farm owned by the Rev. Charles S. Spivey of Philadelphia and occupied by Carl Pearson and family on the Columbus Pike near Wilberforce burned to the ground about noon Friday after it caught fire from a defective flue.

The house was formerly the home of the late Horace Talbert, former secretary of Wilberforce University, whose widow sold it to the Rev. Charles Spivey. The farm is about three-quarters of a mile from Wilberforce University. The house was built about forty-five years ago, and was originally the first district school in that community. Later it was added to and enlarged for residential purposes.

GRADE LOOP FINALS WILL BE PLAYED AT CENTRAL HIGH GYM

McKinley 6B and Spring Hill fifth grade will meet in the finals of the second annual Intra-City Grade School League for the grade basketball championship of the city for 1929 at Central High gymnasium at 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

These two teams emerged victorious from the semi-finals Saturday morning. Spring Hill fifth graders eliminated Spring Hill fourth grade, 14 to 4, holding the losers scoreless until the fourth quarter. Muterspaw counted six points for the winning team while Houston and Dorman each tallied four. Leach and Skelly each shot a basket for the losing team in the last period.

In the other semi-final game, McKinley 6B did the expected and easily downed Central Junior High's "B" team, 19 to 6 to advance to the finals. The score stood 4 to 2 in favor of McKinley at the half, but a last-half spurt removed all elements of doubt. Batson and McDufford starred for McKinley with ten and nine points, respectively. The two Lattrell boys looked best for the losers. Gibney and Bell officiated at the games.

Central Junior High's basketball team will play McClain High Juniors of Greenfield in the preliminary at 7:15 Saturday night.

DIVISION A TEAM BACK AT ANTIOCH

Following a week's adjournment, varsity basketball practice was resumed at Antioch College with a turnout of seven veterans for the Division "A" team Thursday afternoon.

The opening game for the new division will be against Rio Grande next Wednesday night on the foreign floor. Following this contest, three more games remain to be played by this division before the season closes, two this with Findlay and one with Wilmington.

The Division "A" quintet lost two straight games before the Christmas holidays, bowing before Cedarville, 42 to 25 and Capital, 42 to 19. Rio Grande beat Division "B", 40 to 24.

JUNIOR HIGH TEAM BEATS NEW ANTIOCH JUNIOR HIGH 28-16

Minus the services of the Dalton twins, New Antioch Juniors offered but feeble opposition to Xenia Central Junior High's basketball team, which defeated the Clinton County team 28 to 16 in a return basketball game on the New Antioch court Friday night.

Central Juniors led at the half, 18 to 4, and were slightly outscored in the second half, which was fast and rough. New Antioch made a determined stand in the last half of knitting and retained a comfortable lead with Dalton, former New Antioch player, having a prominent role in the victory.

"WHO'S NEXT?" ASKS CHICAGO GANGLAND

ing. The next move is with the Moran interests and it will be written with bullets.

Just precisely what incident resulted in the killing of the six Moran followers as they stood conversing in a garage in North Clark street last Thursday is not definitely known. Police say the North Siders sought to obtain a foothold in the South Side preserves of Capone.

Whatever broke the truce, which has been in effect among the two gangs for a number of months, resulted in the most wholesale slaughter since prohibition went into effect. The killings happened at noon on one of the most crowded streets in Chicago, yet no one has come forward with a satisfactory description of the perpetrators.

Clark street was busily engaged in minding its own business, when suddenly a trio of machine guns began to spit their message of death.

When the gaseous wisps of smoke cleared away, six men lay piled in ghastly death. In the distance a high-powered automobile roared away, containing some three, others say four men. Gangland will find out the exact number and possibly the names. It does not particularly matter. But six men will die for the six who are already dead.

Who will stop the next volley of machine-gun bullets? "Scarface Al" is in retreat. Moran is reported to have followed his example. At least, the police can find neither. The "leggers" are oiling their guns, arranging for sudden business trips in other cities or staying strictly within doors.

They remember Dion O'Bannon, who preceded Moran as leader of the North Side runners, and who was shot to death in his flower store a mile from the scene of the latest massacre; "Diamond Joe" Esposito, "Hynde" Weiss, "Big Tim" Murphy and a handful of others who lived by the gun and died by it.

Who will stop the next volley? Capone, the needle-bred overlord is reputed to have a body guard of five gunmen, at least one of whom is always at his side. Half a dozen times he has escaped death by a hair, as has "Big George" Moran. The chances at this time are against either one "getting his," forewarned as both are.

The scythe of death is poised to strike. Who's next?

Passed Up!

By ROE FULKERSON

©1929 by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:
Betty Brown, seeking to make herself physically attractive, takes up dancing. On her return from a camp, where she has studied it all summer, she goes to her first wild party at a fraternity house. She is given several glasses of punch, which make her dizzy. Later in the evening she gives a dancing exhibition well adapted to the spirit of the party, but inconsistent with the clothes she wears. Her escort, Andy Adair, is put to sleep in one of the upstairs rooms, and Harry Ford drives her home.

CHAPTER XV

The morning after the party at the fraternity house, Betty's mother did not call her. She slept until nine o'clock and woke with a slight headache. She lay long in bed, thinking over the party. It was the first wild party she had ever been on, so she was inclined to excuse herself for her indiscretions.

She decided not to drink punch again, however, as it made her reckless. She would not admit to herself that there was anything very wicked in what she had done. Then came the thought of Andy. He had been drunk!

The anger she felt toward him was increased by the fact that subconsciously she blamed herself. She determined that she would not go out with him again. She would cultivate the attention of Harry Ford, as he seemed better balanced than Andy.

She liked Andy best, of course, but he was weak. She detested weakness, while loving the weak man. She took her shower and went down to her breakfast, explaining her lack of appetite by telling her mother she had eaten a buffet lunch at the party at one-thirty. The orange juice she drank reminded her of the punch of the night before. She shuddered as she swallowed it.

Betty told her mother all about the party, fearing she might hear of it from some other source; also that she and another girl had done solo dances and they had all applauded her. She left out any details which might shock her mother.

When Betty went upstairs to do her bar work and go over the routines of her five dances, she was restless. For the first time she forced herself to her work.

Just as she finished, her mother called her downstairs to answer the telephone. It was Andy Adair. "What did you mean, deserting me for another man last night?" he demanded, laughing.

"Whose fault was it?" she asked, coldly. "I think it was that olive I ate," he said. "Olives always do me like that. They have a soporific effect which is remarkable. I once ate an olive and went to church and slept all through the sermon."

"I shall never go out with you again where there are olives!" said Betty. "Don't you love me any more?" "As much as ever, but that's nothing for you to brag about."

"How did your gin stir?" "That's not fair."

"I'm around and take you for a drive this afternoon and we'll kiss and make up."

"No, I'm busy this afternoon," Betty did not like the light way he tried to pass over the incident.

"Oh, well, then, some other time," he seemed quite nonchalant as she said good-bye and hung up the telephone.

When Betty's father came home from the store that night he said that they had decided to open the fall season at his lodge with an entertainment, and he wanted Betty to dance. The entertainment was two weeks off, but she started at once to make her costume. It was a combination of two costumes in one. First there was a bodice of silver cloth, cut to the waistline in back and quite low in front. Joined to this were light-fitting silver pants, covered with rose-colored silk petals. Then there was a very abbreviated skirt made entirely of large petals of the same rose-colored silk. It was her intention to wear the skirt with the costume when she did her jazz and soft-shoe dances and toss it aside for the acrobatic number.

Her mother protested loud and long against this costume, and insisted Betty should not wear it. It was only by bunting her father into the argument that she was able to gain her point. Even then her mother absolutely refused to give in on the matter of stockings. She was compelled to get a pair of silver, opera-length stockings to go with it.

Her mother said she looked like a circus rider. It was with difficulty they induced her to say she would go to the entertainment with them. She did not want to witness her daughter's shame, she explained.

Betty telephoned Doc Alger, the young medical student who had played for her at the frat house party, to play for her the night of the entertainment. He suggested that she come to the frat house the next night and rehearse the dances. She agreed, if she could bring Harry Ford with her.

She took her costume in a little overnight bag. Harry drove her to the frat house, where she dressed in the room of the boy who was to play for her.

Her first dance was a big hit!

play for her. By the time she finished her rehearsal in the sitting room where the piano was, she had an audience of half a dozen boys and had done her entire repertoire of five dances to their immense delight.

The night of the entertainment the Doc came for her in a car borrowed for the occasion. He was dressed in evening clothes and told Betty he would have the piano placed on the stage so he could play while she changed her costume. This would give her a bit of a breathing spell.

It was the usual lodge entertainment at which the chairman welcomed the audience and introduced each number. There were solos and quartettes, an infant prodigy recited, and the spindleg-legged little girl of whom her father had spoken did a toe dance, for which her mother played the accompaniment.

Then the master of ceremonies introduced Betty and Doc, insisting that he be allowed to lead them out on the stage and explain to the audience that she was the daughter of their old wheel horse, Brother Brown. She got a generous round of applause because of her father's popularity in the lodge. Then she retired behind the scenes, leaving Doc at the piano, which six of the lodge brothers had moved to the stage before the other girl had danced.

Betty felt no trace of the stage fright she had when she danced before the students at Selkirk's. This audience did not know so much silver cloth, cut to the waistline in back and quite low in front. Joined to this were light-fitting silver pants, covered with rose-colored silk petals. Then there was a very abbreviated skirt made entirely of large petals of the same rose-colored silk. The Theater

Nils Asther, who comes to the Bijou Theater here Sunday in "Dream of Love," has only recently had an embarrassing experience with Hollywood's motorcycle policeman. Asther likes to speed and for that reason he collected quite a handful of tickets from policemen for indulging this sport. Nils kept them in his pocket and forgot about them until one night when two policemen, checking up on the tickets, rang his doorbell.

The scene was held in the calaboose several hours before sufficient funds were obtained to pay the accumulated fines. The next morning Nils was doing fifty when he drew abreast of an auto in which two white-capped men could be seen. Discreetly he slowed up and dropped back of the pair. Imagine his chagrin when the auto turned into a milk plant, revealing that the white caps were milkmen. Asther is at the Bijou with Joan Crawford.

The Theater

Nils Asther, who comes to the Bijou Theater here Sunday in "Dream of Love," has only recently had an embarrassing experience with Hollywood's motorcycle policeman. Asther likes to speed and for that the successive scenes have that reason he collected quite a handful of tickets from policemen for indulging this sport. Nils kept them in his pocket and forgot about them until one night when two policemen, checking up on the tickets, rang his doorbell.

The screen star was held in the calaboose several hours before sufficient funds were obtained to pay the accumulated fines. The next morning Nils was doing fifty when he drew abreast of an auto in which two white-capped men could be seen. Discreetly he slowed up and dropped back of the pair. Imagine his chagrin when the auto turned into a milk plant, revealing that the white caps were milkmen. Asther is at the Bijou with Joan Crawford.

Hollywood is just twenty-one years old. Before it was old enough to vote it has seen almost as much as Vienna, Paris or London, its much-older brothers.

DAMAGE SUIT ASKS $4,722 AS RESULT OF MOTOR ACCIDENT

Suit for damages totalling $4,722 has been filed in Common Pleas Court against Kenneth Robinson, colored, this city, who blames the defendant for personal injuries sustained when he was knocked down by Conklin's auto as he was walking across E. Main St. October 27, 1928.

Robinson asserts that before attempting to cross from the north to the south side of the street he looked carefully in both directions and did not see an auto approaching either way. Reaching the middle of the street, he turned in time to observe Conklin's car bearing down upon him at excessive speed from the east, he asserts, but not in time to avoid being struck and dragged by the car for some distance.

The plaintiff declares that he has been confined to bed almost ever since the accident and is now unable to walk except a few steps on crutches.

The plaintiff demands $4,000 damages for personal injuries, $800 for loss of time, $80 for medical expense incurred and $42 for nurse care. C. W. Whitmer and Marshall and Marshall are attorneys for the plaintiff.

NASH WILL DIRECT DISSEMINATION OF NEWS ABOUT LEAGUE

Dissemination of knowledge relative to the League of Nations will be the chief duty occupying the attention of Anthony C. Nash, retiring dean of Antioch College, when he assumes his new post as director of the League of Nations Association at New York City at the close of the present school year, June 30.

He will be a member of the executive board of the association which also includes as members George W. Wickham, Raymond B. Fosdick, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Charles H. Strong and John H. Clark.

In discussing his future duties as a member of the board, Dean Nash said: "The purpose of the association is to disseminate knowledge about the composition and the accomplishments of the League of Nations in this country."

"What the United States does not know about the League is amazing. The League has been well, a political football. Our duty will be to see that no more senators will rise in congress and make the absurd statement recently uttered as that of Jim Reed's."

Dean Nash expressed the opinion that this country's entrance in the League is both opportune and necessary—but not at present. "We are not ready to join. We cannot grasp the greatness of the league it can accomplish. When we do, then will be the time to enter. However, I do think that entrance into the World Court is of great importance, and of immediate necessity."

Dean Nash also explained how the dispensing of knowledge about the league is going to be accomplished. "At present we are promulgating two projects. We are conducting a contest among the high schools and normal schools of the country in which 200,000 students will probably participate. The object of the contest will be to write an essay on the work of the League of Nations—thus enabling the younger generation to see the importance of that organization. Each institution will submit two papers and the winner of the contest will receive an European trip. Of course there will be other prizes offered."

In addition, in the various parts of the country, model assemblies will be held during the coming summer—for instance, in Ohio, at Ohio Wesleyan where twenty-seven colleges will send their representatives. Each college delegation will represent a particular country, members in the league, and its secular problems will be studied by the delegates so that intelligent discussions may be held. In that manner, knowledge about the membership, the functions, and the problems of the League of Nations may be obtained."

Dean Nash will make intermittent trips to New York to direct affairs before ending his stay at Antioch College.

BOY SCOUT ESSAY CONTEST

The following essay submitted by Walter Everhart, 269 Chestnut St., this city, member of Troop No. 41, Boy Scouts of America, was adjudged winner of sixth prize in the essay contest sponsored by the Xenia District Scout Committee.

"Why I am a Boy Scout."

Before I belonged to the Boy Scouts I was under the impression that any boy who belonged was a sissy. One night one of my friends who was a Scout tried to persuade me to go to the Scout meeting with him. I finally consented to go with him out of mere curiosity. The meeting was of an entirely different sort than I had expected. Instead of just sitting around the boys played games, had drills, prepared for tests and some of them passed tests. Everybody had an excellent time. I was impressed by all the different things that the Scouts had to do. I found out that the Boy Scouts not only learned about woodcraft, camping, first-aid, cooking, etc., but also learned how to be good citizens and how to care for their bodies so as to keep them wholesome and healthy. I learned that each Scout did a good turn or deed to someone every day and did not take any pay for it. After finding out what the Boy Scouts really were, my first impression was changed and I eagerly became a member of the greatest boys' organization in the world.

ROOF CATCHES FIRE

A roof fire at the home of Harry M. Weber, 423 W. Market St., rural mail carrier, at 2 p. m. Friday provided the fire department with its tenth alarm of 1929 and its first run since last January 25.

Sparks igniting a shingle roof caused the blaze and the damage will not exceed $8, firemen said. Members of the family threw a bucket of water on the fire, practically extinguishing it before the arrival of firemen.

LINCOLN

THE DAYS when she, as a child, saw the tall, gaunt figure of Abraham Lincoln about his home and on the streets of Springfield, Ill., were recalled this week by Mrs. H. B. Collett, 532 S. Detroit St., upon the occasion of the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of his birth.

When Mrs. Collett, then Anna Rayburn, was a young child her family lived across the street from the Lincolns in Springfield. Later the Lincolns removed to another part of the city, but Mrs. Collett recalls distinctly the tall serious man whom she saw go to and from the house on his way to his law office. She remembers also of her mother telling how Robert Lincoln, son of the martyred president often came to their house to play with her older brothers and sisters. She was too young then to join in the games of the older children, and of Robert, who died not long ago, she has no recollection.
